

Role description

FS Regulatory Senior Associate

London

The opportunity for you

Executive Summary

Taylor Wessing's thriving Financial Services Regulation & FinTech practice is seeking an ambitious and energetic associate to join the group to focus on a range of FinTech regulatory matters.

The firm has a market leading technology practice and impressive technology client base. As a result, much of the work involves advising FinTech and other large technology and e-commerce clients on the implications of regulation in the financial services sector. For example, advising on crypto assets and distributed ledger technology, artificial intelligence, and new models of payments and e-commerce, as well as regulatory advice on securities and investments. The growth in these areas and client demand mean there is now a need for an additional associate to support the team. The team also advises extensively on consumer finance and a large amount of banking regulation (e.g. MiFID, EMIR, CRR).

You would also have the opportunity to get involved in other areas such as new product roll-outs, ESG and climate finance, investment structures, Artificial Intelligence and wider financial services advisory matters.

You would be working alongside lawyers with significant expertise in these areas, across both the financial services and technology teams.

Key skills/capabilities for the role

- Demonstrable interest in and exposure to financial services regulatory and/or FinTech matters, preferably in private practice.
- First rate technical and analytical skills, evidenced by strong academic credentials.
- Candidates will ideally have 4+ PQE level of experience.
- Enthusiasm to help develop a leading financial services regulation FinTech offering, across both the financial services, commercial and corporate groups of the firm.
- Candidates should be articulate and personable, with excellent client handling skills.
